Data and Decisions

Relationship Between Employee Training Hours and Productivity

PRAJWAL SV
PES1PG25BM173

Introduction

1. Globalization has intensified competition, making employee skills a key source of competitive advantage.
2. Training & development enhance employee knowledge, skills, and performance, directly contributing to organizational success.

Introduction

1. Studies show a strong positive relationship between employee training and improved performance.

2. Modern organizations face rapid technological and environmental changes.

3. Employees are the most valuable asset.

4. Training focuses on current job skills.

5. Effective training helps organizations meet global challenges.

Importance of Employee Training

1. Training is a key HRD process that builds job-specific knowledge and skills.
2. Helps employees overcome skill gaps and perform tasks efficiently.
3. Increases motivation, discipline, competence, and overall productivity.
4. Improves both employee performance and organizational effectiveness.

Employee Development

1. Employee development builds career growth, motivation, and loyalty.
2. Well-developed employees enhance organizational efficiency and effectiveness.
3. Development provides broad learning, not just job-specific skills—focusing on knowledge, attitudes, and leadership abilities.
4. Helps employees prepare for higher responsibilities and future challenges.

Data Analysis

Table 4: Coefficients

Model		Unstandardized Coefficients		Standardized Coefficients	t	Sig.	95.0% Confidence Interval for B
		B	Std. Error	Beta			Lower Bound	Upper Bound
1	Constant	0.163	0.146		1.1113	0.029	0.128	0.454
	On the Job	0.31	0.09	0.321	3.761	0.001	0.132	0.488
	Training Design	0.228	0.082	0.233	2.798	0.006	0.066	0.39
	Job Satisfaction	0.103	0.085	0.103	1.206	0.031	0.066	0.272
	Job Skills	0.311	0.088	0.322	3.545	0.001	0.137	0.485

* Dependent variable: Organization Benefits

Observations and Results

1. The study shows that proper training significantly enhances employee skills, satisfaction, and productivity.

2. Organizations should expand training programs and provide feedback to strengthen employee performance.

3. Training and development are essential for building a skilled, motivated workforce and ensuring continuous improvement.

PES UNIVERSITY

CELEBRATING 50 YEARS

THANK YOU